SMU makes SAT optional

The Singapore Management University (SMU) is dropping the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) as a compulsory requirement for admission. From the August intake next year, students can choose to use only their A Level or polytechnic grades, or to also include SAT scores. — NewsRadio 93.8