SMU campus open to public

IT is much like the City Link Mall, which links City Hall MRT station with Suntec City.

The SMU tunnel which opened yesterday, cuts across the new 4.5ha campus of the Singapore Management University in the Bras Basah civic district.

The 800m, air-conditioned passageway allows people to walk in underground comfort.

In future, people will be able to use the SMU tunnel to reach Museum MRT station on the new Circle Line.

The station will be built at SMU, opposite the Singapore Art Museum.

The ground floors of the buildings have been designed to allow people to cut across them and provide access to cafes, book shops and exhibition spaces.

SMU’s campus green, the size of two football fields, will be open to the public too.
