I WANT my MP to listen with his heart.
And I hope he understands that he needs to take the time to interact with the people under his care. Otherwise he would not know exactly what his residents need.
I hope he will take young voices seriously. Guide us gently if we do not understand certain things well enough, but do not snuff out our opinions.
It is one thing to let us vocalise our feelings in a bid to merely entertain us, and another to actually follow up on these opinions with action.
We are not that ignorant that we will not realise it if efforts to engage us are insincere.
Show us you care, don’t just tell us.
The writer is a second-year social science student at Singapore Management University.