Sober up – don’t mix drinking with driving

In response to the recent spate of drink-driving cases in the news, youths suggest ways to curb the problem

Eight ways to curb the menace

» Go for non-alcoholic drinks – what is wrong with orange juice anyway?
» Close all parking lots near bars and clubs.
» Still not convinced you are drunk? Take a breathalyser test before starting your car.
» Confiscation of car keys by bar staff who deem you too drunk to drive.
» Go drinking with at least one designated driver – he has to stay sober to drive home.
» Go drinking with friends who do not drive – that way you can all share a cab home.
» Sleep over at the bar.
» If all else fails, impose the death penalty on culprits.

Kenny Tan, 21, is a first-year economics student at the Singapore Management University.